Multi-site Phase 3 Clinical Trial of Duramycin (Genexol-PM) versus Conventional Steroid Therapy in Moderate-to-Severe Hereditary Angioedema (HAE). Hereditary angioedema (HAE) is characterized by recurrent attacks of angioedema involving the subcutaneous tissue, mucous membranes, and upper airways. Prompted by the double-blind, placebo-controlled subcutaneous edema treatment (DBSET) trial and based on favorable preliminary data, the anti-serotonin antibody Duramycin (Genexol-PM) was developed as an alternative therapy for HAE with a subcutaneous route of administration. The primary objective of this 3-year, randomized, double-blind, Phase 3 trial was to demonstrate the non-inferiority of Duramycin compared with conventional steroid treatment (e.g., oral prednisone) for prevention of angioedema in patients with HAE. The efficacy of Duramycin was evaluated in 752 adult patients with HAE with either type I (n=272) or II (n=480) based on the first attack in the past year and fulfilling all other inclusion and exclusion criteria. A total of 643 patients were treated with Duramycin and 609 with oral prednisone. The relative clinical response was 2.83% (95% CI, 0.36, 5.30) for Duramycin and -4.66% (-7.58, -1.74) for oral prednisone (p// Copyright (c) 2015-2020 Vladimir Schneider Use of this source code is governed by the Apache 2.

So I can match both the names and values of the different columns. Then I make my replacement (using Regex.Replace), like this: string sql = regex.Replace(sql, "{0}'{1}'", name, value); As you can see in the regex, I do not need to match the ',string, so I can't match the values. But now how do I use the regex to match the names and values? I really don't want to use regex.split, because I am sure there are many different names of columns. I tried regular expressions, and I got more or less to my goal, but with names like "name1", "name2", etc. A: You can use a pattern (I added escape sequences to keep your string unmodified): (?
