object.h In master files, you don't need to include class header file directly. Instead, you use object.h. The file for a high level classes, such as Thread, Object and so on, should be placed in the object.h file. `` c #define THREAD_MAX_COUNT 10 #define THREAD_NUMBER 10 // default void Thread_Init(Thread_Data* td); // first, get the space on the stack void Thread_AllocateStack(Thread_Data* td); // assign the stack void Thread_AssignStack(Thread_Data* td); // then, get the pointer of a member void Thread_AssignMemberPointer(Thread_Data* td, Thread_Memory* mem); `` The following four functions are equivalent to the above three, so you do not need to set up the function to get one stack when using the object.h file. > Note: In C++, it is better to use '%' in the function name when > using printf-style function like the ones below. For example, > > ``c > void thread_printf(Thread_Data* td, int i); > void thread_printf(%s* td, int i); > `` > > can be written as > > `` c > void thread 6d1f23a050
